OOLONG

Oolong tea occupies a unique position between green and black tea, undergoing a partial oxidation process that results in a diverse range of flavors and aromas. Crafted with precision and expertise, Oolong tea leaves are carefully withered, bruised, and oxidized before being pan-fired or roasted to perfection by skilled artisans.

One of the most intriguing aspects of Oolong tea is its wide variety of flavors, ranging from floral and fruity to toasty and creamy. Each cup offers a unique taste experience, influenced by factors such as oxidation level, terroir, and processing techniques. Beyond its captivating flavor profile, Oolong tea is also celebrated for its health benefits, including antioxidants that promote metabolism and support digestion, making it an ideal choice for both tea enthusiasts and health-conscious consumers alike.

|  | One of the most unique tea specialties, both in terms of production and character, is crafted almost entirely by hand in Fujian Province. This rarity is based on a high-quality Ti Kuan Yin Oolong that has been only lightly fermented. The production steps must be meticulously followed to achieve the desired creamy, milky taste. Such careful attention is rewarded with an exceptionally mellow tea that quickly wins over many new enthusiasts. Region: China Ingredients: Oolong tea |  | 1-3 min   |

|  | An Oolong classic from the Chinese tradition, Ti Kuan Yin Oolong stands out. Unlike many white or green Chinese teas, which reach their production peak in spring, Ti Kuan Yin Oolong is typically produced in the autumn. These teas enchant the senses with their ripeness and highly aromatic, full-bodied flavor. Our Ti Kuan Yin is sourced from Fujian Province and was harvested and produced in October. Region: China Ingredients: Oolong tea |  | 1-3 min   |

Similar to green tea varieties, jasmine blossoms are blended with the Oolong tea multiple times and then carefully sieved out, leaving almost no visible blossoms in the tea leaves. This meticulous process is a hallmark of exceptional quality. The combination with a Ti Kuan Yin cultivar creates a wonderfully floral and very sweet taste that lingers on the palate. These teas are based on tea plants imported from the Taiwanese highlands, combined with the extensive expertise of Taiwanese tea makers who oversee cultivation and continuously make improvements. We have selected a quality that delights with its dark green, finely rolled leaves. The infusion reveals a glowing, citrus-colored cup with an exceptionally floral aroma. The flavor-intensive bouquet and the smooth, yet noticeable sweetness linger on your taste buds long after enjoying this masterful tea. |    | 2-3 min   |

By halting the fermentation process at just the right moment, only the edges of the leaves are fermented, while the centers remain green. This quality results in a fleshier and more finely processed leaf compared to standard Oolongs. The cup shines with a brassy hue, and the infusion reveals a vibrant mix of intense green and brown colors. The tea offers a slight black tea character, complemented by a pleasant sweetness and a subtle doughy note.   |   | 2-3 min   |

GREEN TEA

Green tea, revered for its freshness and vitality, embodies the essence of nature in every sip. Originating from ancient tea gardens in China and Japan, green tea is celebrated for its vibrant color, refreshing taste, and numerous health benefits.

Crafted with care, green tea leaves are gently plucked, then promptly steamed or pan-fired to halt oxidation, preserving their natural green color and delicate flavor. The result is a tea that captivates the senses with its grassy aroma, crisp taste, and lingering sweetness.

Beyond its exquisite taste, green tea is renowned for its health-promoting properties. Rich in antioxidants, vitamins, and minerals, green tea offers a host of benefits, including boosting metabolism, supporting heart health, and promoting overall well-being. Its moderate caffeine content provides a gentle energy lift, making it an ideal choice for any time of day.

Whether you're seeking a moment of tranquility or a burst of energy, green tea is the perfect companion for your journey. With its refreshing flavor, invigorating aroma, and myriad health benefits, green tea invites you to indulge in the simple pleasures of nature and elevate your tea-drinking experience.

|  | Also called "Tua Chua-Lai Chau" in Vietnamese. The leaves of this rarity come from the old "Tuyet San" tea trees which grow up to 10 m in height in the mountain ranges in northern Vietnam at an altitude of about 1,500 m. The mountaintops are covered in thick clouds almost throughout the year. These practically ideal growing conditions guarantee a constant, very high quality. This tea captivates with a smoky green, beautifully curled leaf. The brewed olive-green leaf discloses the careful processing of the whole leaf, and the golden-coloured cup has a full, slightly sweet taste with a fresh, grass-like note. |  | 1-3 min   |

|--|--|---|------------|
|  | This tea is probably the most popular green tea from Zhejiang, south of Shanghai. The name "Gunpowder" was given to this speciality because of its rolled leaves, which have the form of bullets. If the rolled tea leaves are brewed with hot water, they begin to crackle. The tea is very original in taste, with a very strong and tangy aroma. If you find this tea too strong, you may pour away the first brew. The second one then offers the tender soul of the tea. By the way, in northern Africa the first brew is served with a mint leaf, a tea "à la menthe" so to speak. |  | 1-3 min    |

|  | This Chinese specialty starts with a green tea base, to which fresh jasmine blossoms are added during the drying process. Some of the blossoms are later removed. This classical flavouring technique has been known in China for around 1,000 years. Jasmine tea is practically the national drink of China, enjoyed at any time of day and on any occasion. This particular quality is one of the most popular. The mellow blend retains quite a few blossoms, imparting an intense, flowery jasmine taste and scent. |   | 1-3 min    |

|  | Also known as "Zhucha" or "Pearl Tea", this Gunpowder is much finer than its predecessor. Just like the classic Gunpowder, this tea is dried in rolling drums. The constant rotation gives the tea its spherical form. "Temple of Heaven" tea features a very tightly rolled ball, which is also a sign of quality. The aroma is softer than that of the standard quality and less bitter. This tea may be enjoyed at any time of the day. If you still find the brew too tangy, try pouring away the first brew and taste the second. Most of the caffeine will also be eliminated in this way. |  | 1-3 min   |

|  | This organically cultivated tea is a speciality of the Korean tea culture. It comes from the volcanic island of Jejudo, located to the south of the Korean peninsula. The volcanic layers of rock act like a natural filter for the rain water. This clear and pure water is one of the most important reasons for the cultivation of this wonderful product. "Woojeon" means "before the rain", because the harvest takes place from the middle to the end of April, before the spring rain sets in. The glowing, bottle green cup treats us with a scented, grassy and slightly nutty taste experience. |  | 1-3 min   |

Sencha, meaning "steamed tea," undergoes careful processing and is lightly steamed before rolling and drying. This process gives the leaves a very fine and delicate structure. # BLACK TEA

Black tea, steeped in tradition and imbued with richness, offers a bold and robust flavor that captivates the senses. Originating from the lush tea estates of India, Sri Lanka, China, and Africa, black tea is revered for its deep color, full-bodied taste, and invigorating aroma.

Crafted through a meticulous process of withering, rolling, oxidation, and firing, black tea leaves undergo full oxidation, resulting in their characteristic dark hue and bold flavor profile. Each cup of black tea unfolds a symphony of flavors, from malty and earthy to fruity and spicy, offering a delightful journey for the palate.

Beyond its captivating taste, black tea is cherished for its comforting warmth and energizing properties. Rich in antioxidants and moderate in caffeine, black tea provides a gentle boost of energy, making it an ideal choice for kickstarting your day or enjoying a moment of respite amidst the hustle and bustle.

Whether you prefer it straight or with a splash of milk and a hint of sweetness, black tea invites you to savor its timeless elegance and unwavering charm. With its bold flavor, invigorating aroma, and comforting warmth, black tea promises to elevate your tea-drinking experience to new heights.

|  | UVA Highland Tea Estate is one of the oldest and most famous tea gardens in Sri Lanka. The plantation covers an area of over 300 hectares, and most of the bushes are almost a hundred years old. These plants are not as productive as they used to be, but they still produce high-quality leaves, which is what makes this Pekoe tea so special: a beautiful, coarse-grained, rusty, red Pekoe with a bright red cup. The flavour spectrum is strong, enhanced by citrus notes and metallic notes, and lingers on the tongue and palate for a long time. This UVA Pekoe can indeed be called UVA! |  | 3-5 min   |

HERBAL TEA

Herbal teas, also known as tisanes, offer a comforting and flavorful alternative to traditional teas, crafted from a diverse array of botanicals, herbs, and spices. Renowned for their soothing properties and diverse flavor profiles, herbal teas provide a refreshing and caffeine-free option for tea enthusiasts seeking a moment of relaxation and rejuvenation.

Harvested from the earth's bounty, herbal teas blend a rich tapestry of botanicals, including aromatic herbs, fragrant flowers, zesty fruits, and warming spices. Each cup of herbal tea offers a unique and invigorating taste experience, with flavors ranging from floral and fruity to spicy and herbal, depending on the blend of ingredients.

Beyond their delightful taste, herbal teas are prized for their wellness benefits, with many blends believed to promote health and vitality. From calming chamomile to revitalizing peppermint, herbal teas are cherished for their ability to soothe the mind, support digestion, and boost immunity, making them an ideal choice for enhancing overall well-being.

Indulge in the warmth and comfort of herbal teas and discover the magic of nature in every sip. With their diverse flavors, soothing aromas, and myriad health benefits, herbal teas invite you to unwind, relax, and savor the simple pleasures of life.

|    | The hibiscus, as connoisseurs know, consists of the hibiscus' calyx and external calyx. They are harvested during the time of the fruits and then dried. The inner calyx is 3 cm long and up to the middle it is ball-like. Above there are five upward bent tips. The external calyx consists of 10 small, slim leaves that are strongly "anchored" with the calyx basis. After its flowering time the fleshy and slightly crumbly calyxes take on their typical red colour. The main countries of cultivation of the hibiscus, also known as mallow, are the Sudan, Egypt, China, Mexico and Thailand. # ROOIBOS

Rooibos, also known as red tea, offers a unique and delightful alternative to traditional teas. Hailing from the rugged terrain of South Africa's Cederberg region, rooibos is prized for its vibrant color, smooth texture, and naturally sweet flavor.

Harvested from the needle-like leaves of the Aspalathus linearis plant, rooibos undergoes a process of oxidation and fermentation, which gives it its distinctive reddish-brown hue. Free from caffeine and low in tannins, rooibos provides a soothing and caffeine-free option for tea lovers seeking a moment of relaxation.

Rooibos delights the palate with its naturally sweet and nutty flavor profile, reminiscent of honey and caramel, with subtle earthy undertones. Whether enjoyed hot or cold, pure or blended with other ingredients, rooibos offers a versatile and refreshing beverage suitable for any time of day.

In addition to its delightful taste, rooibos is also celebrated for its health benefits. Packed with antioxidants, minerals, and vitamins, rooibos is believed to support immune health, promote hydration, and soothe the mind and body.

Indulge in the warmth and comfort of rooibos and experience the natural beauty of South Africa in every sip. With its rich flavor, soothing aroma, and myriad health benefits, rooibos invites you to unwind, relax, and savor the simple pleasures of life.

|---|---|---|-----------|
|  | Rooibos' country of origin is South Africa. The natives used Rooibos to make fruity, sweet tea long before the Europeans. The branches of the bush are dried in the sun, and then cut into small pieces. Tea was first exported to distant countries in the 19th century, and since then, its exports have been growing. This resulted in the controlled cultivation of the once wild shrub. High-quality Rooibos tea can be recognized by its ruby color and soft, sweetish, characteristic, aromatic taste. The leaf has quite long needles.Ingredients: Rooibos |  | 8-10 min  |

WHITE TEA

White tea, celebrated for its delicate flavor and subtle sweetness, is revered as one of the rarest and most exquisite varieties of tea. Harvested from the young leaves and buds of the Camellia sinensis plant, white tea undergoes minimal processing, allowing its natural essence to shine through in every cup.

White tea is prized for its purity and simplicity, with minimal processing preserving the delicate flavor and natural goodness of the tea leaves. After harvesting, the leaves are gently withered and dried, resulting in a tea that boasts a light and nuanced flavor profile with hints of floral and grassy notes.

Savor the refined taste and gentle aroma of white tea, which offers a subtle and sophisticated drinking experience. With its pale golden hue and delicate flavor, white tea captivates the senses and invites you to slow down and appreciate the moment.

Beyond its exquisite taste, white tea is also prized for its health benefits, with abundant antioxidants believed to support immune health and promote overall well-being. Its low caffeine content makes it a gentle and soothing option for those seeking a moment of relaxation and rejuvenation.

Indulge in the purity and elegance of white tea and discover a world of refined taste and timeless sophistication. With its subtle flavor, delicate aroma, and myriad health benefits, white tea offers a luxurious and indulgent drinking experience that is sure to delight the senses.

|    | This exceptional quality tea is harvested in the winter months from wild-growing tea shrubs in the plains of Yunnan. Depending on the climatic conditions, the pure blossoms range in color from cream-white to moss green. The production process is quite minimalist: the blossoms are sun-dried after plucking. They are also known as "white pu-erh" because a relatively long storage time, or "ageing," can enhance their ripeness. A mellow scent is complemented by a bouquet and flavor with a hint of tangy, floral freshness. The cup has a white-golden color. |    | "Only the best beans from plantations in the east and center of Cuba are used. Most coffee grows on the steep slopes of mountain ranges at an average altitude of 400 to 800 m above sea level. The plantations are managed by state cooperatives. Artificial fertilizers are not used. The control and development of plants is carried out with great care and it is believed that the maintenance and extension of their natural growth is of great value. Coffee plantations have always been managed according to the original tradition. The best Cuban coffee is "Turquino". Still a secret tip, it's incomparably well-balanced and spicy, with a full-bodied aroma and an incredibly long-lasting aftertaste. It is grown in lower regions; hence it has a lower acidity than other coffees from Central America. Rich and original coffee for true connoisseurs. Its bouquet and taste are reminiscent of the character of the famous Cuban cigars. The color of the beans is unique, something between medium and dark brown. The Cuban "Turquino" is often mentioned among connoisseurs alongside Blue Mountain from Jamaica and Kona from Hawaii." | Roasting | ● ● ● ● |
